

Marvelous Explorations through Science and Stories (MESS): Opportunities for Science

(links for viewing and download at end of transcript)

Cozette White: I see science basically everywhere in the classroom -- throughout the whole entire curriculum, throughout the day -- because it may start simply in their morning time when they're talking about what they do or what they've done or what they've seen to what they build or what they make. They go outside; it's everywhere out there. It's even down to what they eat when they're at mealtime.
